The Trojan Women

Sunday, January 20, 2019 at 6:30pm

"The poet of the world's grief." In what has been called the greatest anti-war play of all time, Euripides presents the pain, suffering, and resilience of the widowed Trojan women, about to become slaves of the Greeks after a brutal 10 years' war. And all caused by a man's lust for a beautiful seductress, or was it by the quarreling gods?
